

CELLAR DOOR

“An informal menu, eclectic in style designed to graze and share or serve individually. A combination of fun and hearty food and playful and engaging wine experiences. We encourage you to try both.

I recommend at least four dishes between two people to share for a light lunch.”

Head Chef - Fabian Lehmann

CELLAR DOOR

“The Ploughman’s Lunch was given to the working people as a staple lunch for hundreds of years. It was so named by the UK Cheese Bureau to increase the sale of British cheese after years of rationing during the war.

Traditionally consisting of bread, cheese, pickles and beer our interpretation uses our very own meads and wines in place of beer.

This cheese selection not only offers some of the best cheese available anywhere but takes you on a regional journey through Australia, experiencing some of the finest local produce.”
